The industrial dispute is pending for 2 years and 3½ months (two years and three and a half months) from 13-11-2007 to 4-3-2010. Unfortunately the petitioner is a labour, who claims to have been victimised by the respondent company, but the petitioner himself is not ready to file claim statement and proceed with the case. On the other hand he has exceeded the time limit stipulated under the Industrial Disputes Act. Despite sufficient opportunities given, the petitioner did not choose to file the claim statement. This shows that the petitioner would have got employment in some other company and hence has lost interest in the matter. Further, the Industrial Disputes Act, requires that a dispute should be resolved within 6 months (six months). Hence this court finds that there is no point in having the case pending on file and the industrial dispute is liable to be dismissed.

3. In the result, the industrial dispute is dismissed.

Typed to my dictation, corrected and pronounced by me in the open court, on this the 4th day of March 2010.

Presiding Officer,
